LATER, AFTER THE POSSE HAD TAKEN THE PRISONERS...

READING-WRITING-ETC.

There was an unusual amount of activity at the Bar-T Ranch. A line of cowboys was forming at the wash basin. First one in line would use the warm water and soap for five minutes. Then Bill Hendricks, the foreman, would do a thorough check up, including the area behind the ears. Then he would repeat the same command:

"OK Now put on a clean shirt and remain spotless Otherwise you get night riding for the entire month."

At ten-thirty they were ready to mount their horses. Ellen Johnson, daughter of Bill Johnson, owner of the Bar-T Ranch gave them their final instructions.

"We will ride slowly to Tonerstown. The stage is due at about noon. I don't think Mike Davis and his boys will create any trouble this time. Sheriff Williards has sworn in a dozen deputies to be on hand as a warning that this time the town means business. We want a teacher and a school for the children. And we aren't going to let Mike Davis scare away this teacher. We are offering the highest amount ever paid in the territory. In addition, the teacher will live at the ranch as our guest. Now, let's get going."

Slowly the cowboys rode along the road to town. Ben Jessups spoke to his pal, Jeff Hunters.

"I kin outshoot any hombre. Maybe I should learn how to reckon with figures?"

Jeff Hunters laughed. He was trying to figure out what color eyes and hair the school teacher would have. They arrived in town and there was a big banner across Main Street which read: "Tonerstown Welcomes Teacher." The cowboys dismounted and joined the large group outside the Express Office. Suddenly a rider came down Main Street at a lope. He reined in his horse and jumped off. He had important news for the crowd.

"Stage is rounding the bend. Should be here inside of ten minutes."

Mayor Higgins quickly went over his speech of welcome. He gave final instructions to his two children about presenting the flowers.

"When I say that this town wants you, you are to hand the flowers to teacher."

The stage was in sight. The driver carefully stopped the coach at the Express Office. There was a big grin on his face. He jumped down and opened the door. A thin young man in his early twenties came out. The crowd waited and Mayor Higgins took a peep inside.

"Empty!" he shouted. "Where's our teacher?"

"I am the teacher," explained the young man. My name is Frank Carney. Miss Hilda Perkins was supposed to take this job, but she married the manager of a bank. So the teacher agency in St. Louis asked me to come. When I heard about the large salary you were paying, I accepted the offer."

There was a roar of laughter from the crowd. A big heavy man pushed his way right up to teacher. The crowd parted slowly as Mike Davis faced the young man. Quickly the sheriff signaled to his deputies to be ready in case of trouble. The cowboys from the Bar-T Ranch were getting a bit nervous.

"This town hasn't been able to hold a teacher," said Mike Davis. "Maybe it takes a man to do a man's job. Hope you like the place."

There was a sigh of relief as Mike Davis walked away. The mayor made his speech, and his two children presented the flowers. At the moment, there was a break of silence. But the teacher smiled and accepted the offering in good spirits. Then he was taken to a horse.

"You will ride back with us to the ranch," explained Ellen Johnson. "You are staying at our ranch. Actually school doesn't open for three weeks. So you can have sort of a vacation and also meet the people of the community."

"But I can't ride a horse," explained the young man. "Once when I was ten I took a pony ride. I fell off and never since that unfortunate event have I been on back of a horse of any kind or description."

Sheriff Williards heard those words and did some quick thinking. He turned to the young man.

"I have a buckboard at the livery stable. Surely you can sit down and let a horse pull you. Use it while you are here."

That solved the problem and soon the young teacher was at the ranch. The men all felt a big let down. As Jeff Hunters well expressed it:

"For a man teacher we git all cleaned up!"

For the next three days the young man was shown around the ranch. He drove the buckboard. Then late in the afternoon he went to town to pick up some books that were waiting for him at the Express Office. Ellen Johnson had become his constant guide and companion. She sat next to him.

"If you are going to remain in the West you mus. learn to ride a horse", she told him sweetly.

"Why?" he challenged her. "This is an ideal way of travelling."

She couldn't think of a suitable answer and said nothing. They stopped at the Express Office and there Frank Carney picked up his package. He heard two shots. The swinging doors of the Big Drink Cafe parted. An old man tumbled to the ground. Mike Davis held a smoking six shooter in his hand.

"If I catch you here again, I'll kill you the next time."

The young teacher helped the old man to his feet. Even helped him brush off some of the dirt from his clothing.

"What happened?" he asked.

"Mike Davis cheated me at cards. I saw him take an ace from his sleeve. Tried to say something. He threatened to kill me."

The young teacher walked right into the cafe. He faced Mike Davis and spoke softly.

"That was a terrible thing you did. To cheat a poor old man. And then when he complained you used force. You should be ashamed of yourself. Now give him back the money you took. Also say you are sorry. Don't you ever do such a horrible thing again."

Mike Davis' hand automatically went for his six shooter. But he didn't take the gun out of the scabbard. He had enough sense to realize you couldn't shoot down an unarmed man who hadn't actually threatened him.

"Why don't you go back to your little school and mind your business," he suggested as he spoke slowly. For Mike Davis realized every eye in the cafe was on him. Quietly, Ellen Johnson had entered and was watching the scene.

"But this is my business," insisted the young teacher. "I want this town to be the kind of place in which parents are proud to raise their children. I understand you have a ten year old boy. Surely you must be ashamed of yourself. Do you want your son to grow up knowing how bad a man his father is?"

They say that Mike Davis started to drip sweat. He just didn't know what to do. Finally he realized that whatever it was, somebody had beaten him at a game he didn't know how to play.

"I'll straighten things out with the old man," he finally said. Then he walked out of the place.

Ellen Johnson took no chances. She put her hand in Frank Carney's and escorted him to the backboard. She took the reins and drove to the ranch. But when he helped her down she did say what was on her mind.

"Either you are the most fearless man in the world. Or perhaps the biggest fool alive. You could have been killed."

Frank Carney smiled and he came a little closer to Ellen. He looked straight into her pale blue eyes.

"If I had been killed, would it have mattered to you?"

She didn't have to answer that as the color of her face changed. He took her in his arms and kissed her. From the bunk house the foreman watched the two of them. He shrugged his shoulders.

"If this keeps up I'm willing to give bets we get a new school teacher."

There were no takers. But soon the ranch heard the story of what had happened in town. The cowboys could hardly believe their ears. But they did look upon teacher with a new interest.

"A guy what has guts belongs in the West. And he's got plenty of them," was the way Jeff Hunters expressed it.

There wasn't any doubt that Tonerstown was being tamed. Mike Davis was no longer gambling. He kept his boys at the ranch he owned and concentrated on the cattle business. People now said good morning to each other and also to their new teacher. Beards were being shaved off and more and more people were wearing clean shirts in town. One evening Lou Gengers came into town shooting off his six shooter. Teacher was watching and went up to the cowboy.

"Real bullets in that gun?"

"Of course," laughed Lou Gengers.

"Do you realize you could have shot a child?" said Frank Carney. "I never want you to do that again in town. Real bullets are dangerous. Furthermore you are a grown up man. Such behavior is not for you."

Lou Gengers didn't know what to say. He had also heard a rumor that if anything happened to teacher, you would have to reckon with Mike Davis.

"Sorry," he finally said. "It couldn't happen again."

School opened and every child in the community was present, including parents, town officials, and a lot of curious adults. They watched Frank Carney give out the books. Then he went over a spelling lesson, a history lesson, and a reading lesson. You could have heard a pin drop. The room was quiet as Ellen Johnson spoke to the children.

"How do you like your new teacher?" was all she asked.

Bedlam broke out as the kids yelled roars of approval. Even the adults joined in the noise. Then they were quiet again when Ellen raised her hand for silence.

"I like him too," she continued. "He will teach school because that is what is in his heart. He likes children. But I want you to know something. We are getting married next week and everybody is invited."

This time they say the shouting reached Junction Point, some twenty miles away. I think this is an exaggeration. But maybe it could have happened.

TRAGIC EPISODE WERE REPORTING FOR THEIR PAY...

DID
YOU DO IT? I MEAN
POSITIVELY FINISH
OFF JOE LOOMIS
FOR GOOD?

WE SURE DID,
MR. REGAN!
AFTER I SHOT
HIM, I SAW HIM
FLOATIN' TO-WARD THE FALLS

COME WITH ME--WE'RE GOING TO RIDE
DOWN-RIVER PAST THE FALLS AND FIND
HIM! I'VE GOT TO BE SURE HE'S OUT
OF THIS ELECTION--TOO MUCH DEPENDS ON THIS TO TAKE A CHANCE!

TERRIBLE--BUT I KNOW I'M LUCKY TO FEEL ANY WAY AT ALL!
YOU SAVED MY LIFE,
DIDN'T YOU MISTER?
VINCE REGAN'S BOYS
AMBUSHED ME--THEY WON'T QUIT TILL
THEY KNOW FOR SURE THEY GOT ME!

I FIGGERED
THAT--SO I
PLANTED A FEW FAKE
CLUES ON THE RIVER BANK FOR THEM TO FIND!

LASH LA RUE WESTERN

CHARLTON COMICS GIVE YOU MORE!

LASH LA RUE WESTERN

REGAN FIGURED HE WAS SAFE--HE WAS A FAST MAN WITH A COLT AND HE HAD TWO BUSHWHACKERS PLANTED NEARBY, SO HE WENT FOR HIS COLT...

GET 'IM, WAYNE!

YOU FOOLS! YOU'RE BOTH FIRED!

I QUIT A MINUTE AGO, REGAN!

VINCE REGAN KEPT CAMPAIGNING... JOE LOOMIS STAYED HIDDEN UNTIL ELECTION DAY!

LET'S GO, MR. LOOMIS! ALL YOU'VE GOT TO DO IS SHOW YOURSELF AND THE CITIZENS WILL KNOW REGAN LIED!

THERE MAY BE VIOLENCE, CHEYENNE! I DON'T WANT ANYONE TO GET HURT!

LET ME WORRY ABOUT THE VIOLENCE AND WHO WILL OR WON'T GET HURT, MR. LOOMIS!

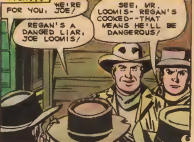

THE CITIZENS WHO HAD COME TO TOWN TO VOTE FOR REGAN WERE STUNNED WHEN THEY SAW JOE LOOMIS! THE CHEYENNE KID KNEW AT ONCE THAT REGAN WAS SURE TO LOSE THE ELECTION...

WE'RE FOR YOU, JOE!

REGAN'S A DANGEROUS LIAR, JOE LOOMIS!

SEE, MR. LOOMIS-- REGAN'S COOKED-- THAT MEANS HE'LL BE DANGEROUS!

CHARLTON COMICS GIVE YOU MORE!

THERE WERE TOO MANY WITNESSES-- VINCE REGAN COULDN'T ORDER HIS MEN TO BUSHWHACK HIS OPPONENT WITH THAT MANY WITNESSES!

YOU'LL HAVE TO DO THE JOB YOURSELF, VINCE!

YOU BUNGLERS HAVE RUINED ME! GET OUT OF MY WAY!

HOLD IT THERE, LOOMIS! I HEAR YOU'RE CALLING ME A LIAR! THAT RIGHT?

THAT'S RIGHT, REGAN! AND, IF YOU PULL A GUN ON ME, I'LL SEE YOU GO TO JAIL FOR IT!

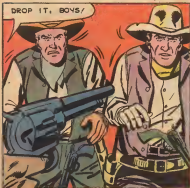

DON'T BLUFF, LOOMIS!

GO AHEAD, JOE--I'LL HANDLE THE REST OF THEM!

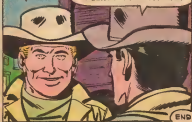

DROP IT, BOYS!

LATER, AFTER THE POLLS CLOSED...

I OWE YOU MY LIFE, CHEYENNE!

YOU DON'T OWE ME A THING, JOE! WE'RE BOTH AGAINST CRITTERS LIKE VINCE REGAN--JUST KEEP FIGHTIN' 'EM IN OFFICE, THAT'LL BE PLENTY TO REPAY ME!
